

The Canadian Adventist Messenger will consider accepting advertisements which are consistent with its mission and that of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Exclusions

The following categories of products and services are not generally acceptable for publication in the Messenger:

1. Ads for financial investment opportunities, borrowing activities, or insurance products which are not sponsored by entities of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada.
2. Ads for printed or recorded materials which are not produced by Adventist denominational publishers, or which have not been approved by the North American Division Church Resources Consortium Board.
3. Ads for gender-specific live-in domestic positions submitted by single/separated adults.
4. Ads containing extravagant claims.

Note

Final authority for acceptance or rejection of any advertisement rests with the Messenger Committee, consisting of Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada officers and the Messenger staff. Acceptance of ads does not constitute endorsement of the products or services advertised, and rejection of ads does not constitute disapproval of the products or services involved. The Messenger assumes no liability for the products or services advertised and no responsibility for typographical errors.
